Biography

As Chief Technology Officer, Jeff oversees data and technology for Trimont globally. The combination of these services represents the company's future initiatives to integrate human capital, data, and information to its global clientele. He is responsible for the infrastructure needed to operate out business, the optimization of business processes, and the collection, and dissemination of key data elements both externally and internally.

Jeff has spent his entire 25 plus year career in Information Technology. Prior to Trimont, Jeff served as CIO of NewPoint Media Group, overseeing high-volume real estate listing websites. Early in his career, Jeff was the CIO for a consumer goods company and was responsible for extensive data integration with Fortune 500 retailers.

About Trimont
